Local MC student to perform in recital

Local Monmouth College student Cassie Frantz, Macomb, is one of five students performing in the school's sixth annual Honors Recital Tuesday.

The Monmouth College music department will host the recital, beginning at 7:30 p.m., in the Kasch Performance Hall of the Dahl Chapel and Auditorium.

Frantz, a senior at the school, will play the piano as part of the event.

Students were selected for the recital through a competitive audition process. Other students performing include sophomore Kelsie Huber, Camanche, Iowa, piano; sophomore Dane Feenstra, Pittsfield, voice; senior Elena Reshetova, Byransk, Russia, violin and junior Hang Nguyen, Chicago, piano.

"Only those auditions which display solid preparation and musicianship and are polished and performance-ready are accepted," said the department's chair, Ian Moschenross.

The recital is free and open to the public and will include music by Bach, Chopin, Debussy and Pergolesi.

Battle of the Books, Under the Big Top

On Monday, April 13 second graders at Lincoln School began their annual reading challenge, "Battle of the Books, Under the Big Top." The kick-off featured Squeaker the Clown, aka Jon Keck, motivating students to become excited about their reading challenge. The reading event will last three weeks and the goal is to read 30,000 minutes during that time period. If the goal is met, Kelly Carpenter, Lincoln School Principal, will dress up as a clown for closing activities May 1 at 12:15 pm. During the three weeks the battle is on, different celebrity readers will come in each day to read to the second graders, including various Macomb administrators, retired teachers, Representative Rich Myers and Macomb Mayor Mick Wisslead.
